There are so many things these trucks can't possibly account for such as how many times has drivers worked together to park under bridges in order to stop an attempted suicide from taking place if a self driving truck is first in a line of traffic it could assist in someone's suicide or if a child pulls a bike onto the road the truck is not going to lay itself over to avoid killing a child a real person is looking ahead and sees this type of stuff and will react as needed in each situation
