

Comment from Jeff Baker

The more fuel efficient the vehicles can be, the better. The current administration refuses to believe in science, so I suspect they will not listen to the overwhelming evidence of climate change. But they should, for the sake of future generations.