The eld mandate need to be toldly done away with for small companies and owner operators because it is Just another expense that we dont need. There also needs to be something put in place so that truckers can legally carry a pistol in the truck. I also think that big companies need to be more responsible for the drivers that they are putting behind the wheel such as a law that says if they have this many crashes owning this many trucks. they get this big of a fine and or have to shut down there company completely for unsafe and negligent drivers. These are maybe just some things to think about and maybe ideas for you guys to throw around. Thank you for taking the time to read this.
