

Don Gore - Comments

Technology is not ready, probably never will be unless processing speeds and power [data transfer] are greatly increased. That technology wall was hit a few years back. If the government passes this they [the sponsors and those that approve/vote for this] should be held personally accountable for any deaths along with the companies involved.

Asking for comments on a web site is wrong, this should be voted on, not everyone gets on the internet much less know this page exists. This is a crooked backhanded way to slip something through and claim people support it.

You can count me as a NO computer controlled vehicles. A passenger car would be bad enough but this is just reckless.