

James Hall - Comments

First of all ... There is no driver shortage ! But there is a shortage of people who are willing to be treated like dirt while working for slave wages. NO AMOUNT of TECHNOLOGY CAN EVER REPLACE AN EXPERIENCED DRIVER! An Automated Driving System has little to do with safety and everything to do with mega carriers looking to cut costs. FMCSA is not only complicit but apparently a willing partner in this facade all in the name of safety. Wake up people. Technology is not the be all end all answer , quality drivers properly trained and experienced is.