

Bryan Luster - Comments

I would like to see that if theres an electronic failure that the companies are held responsible for these issues. One lady was drove over from an automated vehicle and I dont think anyone was to blame. There should be heavy fines included because this is all about safety.