I am against the supposed self driving truck. The society that we live in it will not work. In my opinion there will be more crashes. What if a storm rolls across the sky and blocks the signal. What will happen then? I have had this happen to where my cell phone doesn't work. What about driving in bad weather, snow, heavy rain, fog? Have to deal with this situation on a daily basis on the road. I have driven these trucks with on guard system and lane sensors. The roads are not that straight. What about when there is an accident that just happens a 1/4 mile up the road, how's this truck going to react. Well it put other drivers in a dangerous situation, not knowing what to do. In my opinion needs to be tested more on, onroad situations with other traffic, just not going down a empty highway or on flat ground.
