

John Beauchamp - Comments

I feel that with this new technology, we need more testing, I have seen recently where other ADS/ auto pilots have caused deaths. I would not drive one. As a CDL holder I find this to be the disturbing. You want to trust 80k lbs to a computer? No thank you. It is true computers dont get tired. But they have issues that people dont, people can compensate for issues that arise on the go. You cant program the computer to react to everything. This past April a Tesla was on auto pilot and drove under a semi crossing a 4 lane highway killing the driver. The AP thought the semi was a bridge. So again no thank you. Test it. Prove it works.