While I appreciate the request for comment for regulatory and safe introduction of autonomous vehicles, I don't believe that these regulations should even be reviewed until more successful testing and safety scenarios are tested and completed. At least one fatality has already occurred with a passenger vehicle and already 80,000 plus pound capacities are being reviewed. Regulatory and from a safety standpoint if the rest of transportation had that record serious reform would be implemented prior to introduction of new technology. That should be the case here as well. For the safety of the traveling public and our country as a whole please reconsider reforms. Thank you.
