

Comment from Paul FedupwithGM

My family and I are tax paying Americans that helped bail out GM when things were going bad for them!

The U.S. government, you and I, lost $11.2 billion on its bailout of General Motors, according to a 2014 government report. The government invested about $50 billion to bail out GM as a result of the company's 2009 bankruptcy.

I have owned GM products for the past 42 years. I currently own a 2007 GMC Yukon that my family is not safe in, and forget selling it. Do you think a dealer will give you top dollar for a possible death machine? Tried selling to public and 7 times I was asked if the recall had been completed. Well you sure know that answer!!

I called a local GM dealer here in SC and the lady told me " Oh , the air bags in your Yukon were designed with GM engineers and Takata together and they are safe" I then asked her if she wanted to take a trip across country with me in the front seat. She replied "Well I am sorry sir, I can't comment or give you any other information". Well she probably own a Honda!!

I am sure GM engineers work with all suppliers but that doesn't mean they are fail proof.

Another good example is the wonderful cracking dash cover. They admitted it was a manufacture defect and wanted me to pay $500.00 labor to split the cost! So now if the airbag deploys, the dash will explode and and throw plastic shrapnel at everyone. If the airbag doesn't kill you the dash will.