

Comment from Lance Rowe

Cameras instead of mirrors? Not interested. I hate the idea.

Must everything be made with gimmicky electronics, using excessive parts and resources to manufacture, with several ways prone to failure, and requiring lots of money to fix if the car dealer can even FIND the problem? $150 per hour dealer labor rates and drop your car off for three days. And talk about replacement parts, not a $10-30 mirror, no... $100-200-500 parts.

My rear-view backup camera only needs a little bit of dirt, or water droplets, or road-salt-infused water to be USELESS. Mirrors can be very dirty and still work.