

Comment from Dale Pedersen

I strongly support offering manufacturers flexibility in implementing CMS as alternatives to standard side mirrors. My 2014 Honda Odyssey has a camera mounted below the right side rear view mirror that presents its image in the central screen when I turn on the right turn signal. It always provides a better field of view than the regular mirror above it. It also provides useful markings to quickly determine how far away the vehicles were that could be seen in it.