

Comment from Anonymous Anonymous

I am completely opposed to the proposed regulation requiring the replacement of side mirrors with cameras. This is an unnecessary burden on the American consumer who will pay the price of this unneeded technology. Side mounted mirrors are simple, seldom need repair, and work as designed. Adding more technology to vehicles does not make driving safer! The real problem is the Inattentiveness of many drivers.

Please keep in mind that the proposed regulation will further increase the price of autos and make them even more difficult to repair, with little actual benefit to the public.

Check with the insurance industry and you will find that the addition of all this kind of technology in recent years has made cars extremely costly, and even impossible, to repair. This is wasteful and injurious to our environment.