

Comment from Charles Hepperle

No.

Side mirrors should be retained. They could be augmented by cameras, but not be replaced by the cameras. If cameras were the sole replacement of mirrors the vehicle would essentially be undrivable in the event of a technical failure. Mirrors would still be usable, at least partially, even when damaged/broken by impact or sprayed with a foreign substance, such as mud.