

Comment from Randall Weers

Along with the noted concern about being able to use mirrors to see if it is safe to exit a parked vehicle, I have concerns about what happens in a moving vehicle if the electronics malfunction. Mirrors would offer the opportunity to look for vehicles along side and safely navigate a vehicle to the side of a road. This is essential for vehicles where visibility to the rear relies on mirrors. How will this possibility be addressed?