I think that if someone is driving intoxicated, they should be held extremely responsible as they could have taken someone's life. Personally, if they even take one sip of alcohol they should not be driving. We see way too many people getting killed from people driving under the influence. For the jail I work for, I feel like that is all I see anymore. Is people OWI or DWI. It can be highly dangerous and really get someone hurt. I think they should start counting them as felonies. I know under some circumstances they are, but they shouldn't always get off as misdemeanors.
