

Comment from David Andrews

Please approve this technology ASAP! It is such a disservice to take so long to approve superior lighting technology that has been in use on far safer roads throughout Europe for years. Having used these types of headlights before, it is a tremendous enhancement to safety and should be quickly approved so they can be activated on vehicles already containing them (Audi for example - where owners purchased them expecting them to work already).