

Comment from Crystal Alford

I support this proposed rule as air bag testing is necessary in order to update CRS. The cost translation of updating seems to be minimal to manufacturers, however how will this translate to purchasers? Once approved, will older models need to be replaced in a certain time frame? How will they be notified and will there be incentives to update to the safer models?