I will support this proposal, it is 2021 and it is time for people to evolve. Disabled people had experience stigma for so long because of "old thinking ways", those people who are not disabled have tendency of thinking that they know the best. Actually, it is another way around, people with disability knows their own disability the best and this is great opportunity for disabled human beings to gain independence. I know this is "new" experience for people who is stuck in their own old traditional perspective, but this is great way to allow people to grow independent, to become involved with community and allowing them to travel with ease without depending on "normal" people to do it for them. Please ignore these old folks and their sad common perspective on disabled individuals. Go and make new changes! It is new era, new dawn!
