

Anonymous - Comments

Should it be reasonable for automakers to charge for equipment mandated by law? By now rear view cameras are produced in masses and cost is lower than ever. I've noticed they are placed under optional equipment when screen displays are placed other than the norm. Would i be charged extra for a fancy seat belt design? Probably not because the law is written more specific than this one