

Comment from Kermit Kubitz

Any framework for automated driving systems should consider, and have plans for mitigation of, any network connectivity or other interruption of necessary vehicle connections with outside services, caused either by an electrical outage or other reason for communications interruption with a vehicle whose autonomous control is dependent upon such communications from outside the vehicle.