

Comment from Ben Copeland

I believe using an all camera-based system for vehicle situational awareness would be very advantageous. My vehicle (Tesla) is currently equipped with 360 degree cameras and a recent software update allows the side pillar cameras to activate when a signal change is indicated. This system is better because it prevents me from missing any possible blind spots. It would also allow for a sleeker and more aerodynamic vehicle to be designed without mirrors. Thank you.