

Comment from Kathie Boelkes

I look even though I have only the mirrors, no camera. Anyone who is taught due diligence in driver's training in classes for 3 months, learns not to fully trust just mechanics. Someone who does not double check, is always in the mix. Over time, cars and trucks have been driven with no mirror. The important thing is sound drivers education. I like the mirrors very much. No problem that I see. People who are careless are careless in any auto. If someone fell asleep at the wheel, cameras are safer than mirrors
