Please stop allowing carmakers (SUV/truckmakers) to make their vehicles so much bigger and therefore deadlier to everyone who's not in that vehicle. The US should be moving towards encouraging travel outside of cars- more support for biking, walking and transit (which often involves biking/walking to get to) and by allowing the gigantic vehicles on city streets you're threatening the safety of all 'vulnerable' (i.e. everyone not in cars/trucks!) road users. Shame.

Please also plan to limit the capacity to speed excessively in new vehicles. There is no reason whatsoever a car/truck available to the general public should be able to be driven over say, 80mph. Please put people and safety first over the automotive industry.
