To whom it may concern, adding speed limits of 60mph to trucks and semis would make deliveries of all important products much much slower. As our supply chain is already very very messed up, we as a country cannot afford the delays that this would bring. Additionally, this would clog up all of our major highways and slow all traffic. Gas and diesel are already prohibitively expensive, adding this would only make all travel more troublesome and expensive, not even considering how much more expensive our goods will become if this rule is added. This is, to put it nicely, a terrible idea. Respectfully, please scrap this idea and everything and anything like it.
