

Anonymous - Comments

To better reach communities that may not have the resources to identify safety changes, ensure that local governments must work with schools, community centers, churches, or non-profits to identify improvements. Allocate a certain percentage of funding that has to be spent on areas with greatest transportation need (as determined by poverty level or lack of existing transit and bike/ped infrastructure). The solutions in that area should include participation from the schools and other community institutions.