

Comment from Leigh Anderson

When developing the eligibility to access the funds please remember to include the education programs that are teaching the next wave of responders. The technical colleges and there are many high school EMS and Fire programs throughout the country. Use them to begin to change the culture when they are fresh to the career. Attached are a few pictures of high school students learning the public safety trades.